I have some evidence for some of them, with a combination of personal experience, first-hand accounts, other written accounts, and other things like photographs. Add to that that I think if you investigate the mind enough, some of the conceptual 'filters' that we take to be really real are seen to not be really real, and I think it actually makes sense as well analytically.

With this controversial book, Dean Radin presents the scientific evidence for an array of psychic powers, but he frames the discussion in terms of yogic siddhis. "Siddhi" is a Sanskrit term for an ability that isn't seen among the general population--at least not reliably so-- and for the most part these "accomplishments" correspond to the categories discussed in parapsychology (i.e. telepathy, precognition, psychokinesis, and clairvoyance.) [Note: As mentioned, this is ...

A summary of the Yoga Sutra led to the following three important principles. 1) 'Submit to the resonant field in coherent space'. 2) 'The seating posture provides the quickest and easiest way to Siddhi.'. 3) 'The seating posture must be steady and comfortable'. As we see, the emphasis is on ease and comfort in sitting, in a particular way.

SIDDHI - SANKHYAKARIKA

Patañjali's Yoga- s' trathus demonstrates a significant preoccupation with the powers (siddhi) of Yoga, minimally as potential distractions from a spiritual path and maximally as accoutrements of a quasi-divine being that has reached the threshold of liberation or has gone beyond it altogether (Āra--ya 1983: 346-407).
