The Duel And Other Stories

"The Duel and Other Stories" is a collection of stories about Russians behaving badly and having long, philosophical discussions about their bad behavior. Some of the men have aquiline noses. Some of the women have heaving bosoms. Bosoms seem to heave often in Russian fiction, or at least in translations of Russian fiction.

The Duel and Other Stories by Anton Chekhov

THE DUEL | | It was eight o'clock in the morning—the time when the officers, the local officials, and the visitors usually took their morning dip in the sea after the hot, stifling night, and then went into the pavilion to drink tea or coffee. Ivan Andreitch Laevsky, a thin, fair young man of twenty-eight, wearing the cap of a clerk in the Ministry of Finance and with slippers on his feet ...

FREE DOWNLOAD!The Duel is the main and longest story, but I don't really think it was the best. It is the story about a man in the Caucasus and his troubles with his wife and a biologist which culminates in a duel. All the characters are excellently written, and the story was very well done, but the end leaves much to be desired, and seems like he tried too quickly to wrap up the story.

"I love to hear the truth" Anton Chekhov's The Kiss and the Duel and Other Stories translated by Constance Garnett (1916-1923) is an excellent collection. Each story features a crisis in some human relationship: between strangers in "The Kiss" (1887), when a bespectacled, lynx-whiskered, milquetoast army officer is mistakenly kissed by an unknown woman in a dark room at a tea party; enemies in ...
